IORO Publications today announced the official launch of its new international academic publishing platform, dedicated to advancing high-quality, peer-reviewed, open-access research across multiple disciplines.

IORO Publications aims to provide a global platform for researchers, scholars, and academics to publish impactful work with transparency, integrity, and accessibility at its core. The platform is launching with multiple multidisciplinary journals spanning fields including science, engineering, social sciences, humanities, business, and healthcare.

As part of its Inaugural Issue Launch, IORO Publications is now accepting manuscript submissions from researchers worldwide. To encourage early contributions, the platform is offering a limited-time 100% Article Processing Charge (APC) waiver for the first 5 accepted papers.

In addition to research submissions, IORO.org is also opening applications for its Editorial Board and Review Board, inviting qualified academics and subject-matter experts to contribute to the development of rigorous peer-review standards and journal governance.

"Our mission is to build a credible and globally accessible academic publishing ecosystem that supports researchers at every stage. We are committed to maintaining high editorial standards while ensuring open access to knowledge worldwide."
— Spokesperson, IORO Publications
